

Shreveport Cinema Series Art Prints

Featuring Kevin Costner Now Available.

The first original painting in the Shreveport Cinema Series by artist Vernon Wells was auctioned off on May 16 at the 2010 Hal Sutton Foundation Children's Classic. The subject of this first painting was actor Kevin Costner, who graciously allowed his image to be used in this fund-raising effort. The images in the painting are a central portrait of Mr. Costner surrounded by scenes from 2 movies he made in Shreveport – The Guardian and Mr. Brooks.

Now you can own a limited edition art print of this painting and share in a piece of Shreveport movie history while helping the Hal Sutton Foundation attain its goal of improving the healthcare of area children. 250 limited-edition prints are now available and can be purchased by clicking here.

The Hal Sutton Foundation is pleased to recognize the artist, Vernon Wells, and the considerable talent he brought to the project. Vernon has been commissioned by more pro athletes to do paintings than any artist in the world. Literally! As a former professional athlete himself, he has maintained his involvement in sport by painting those that play for over 30 years. He turned his talent for art into a career despite having no formal training. He graduated from TCU, but with a degree in Radio/TV/Film and never used it. Instead, his love of sport and his passion to paint it, led him to his place at the top of his field. His client list is long and star-studded with the biggest names in sports. At times, Vernon veers away from sports to do special portraits and projects like the Shreveport Cinema Series.

These limited edition art prints are 22' x 30" and printed on the highest quality paper using state-of-the-art printing techniques.
